

MRS. COREY BEAUTIFIED BY OPERATION ON LIPS

Lovely American Woman Acquires Cupid's Bow in Paris
New York, June 21.—Women of prominence in New York have been interested highly in the news from Paris that Mrs. William Ellis Corey has had an operation to transform her lips into a cupid's bow. A French beauty specialist performed the feat for the former Mabelle Gilman, actress and singer.

As Mabelle Gilman, she was wooed and won by Mr. Corey, formerly president of the United States Steel Corporation. For some years the Coreys have lived at the Corey chateau in Paris.

When she was on the stage, Mrs. Corey was known for her striking and unusual beauty. She was considered one of the loveliest women in America.

The cupid's bow—or the sewed smile, as the operation is sometimes known—is one of the recent discoveries of beauty surgery. The lips are cut deftly at each corner and then caught with one or two stitches so as to take in whatever lip is necessary to bring the mouth to the desired size. Then the fullness is taken from the lower lip by removing a strip of skin on the inside. The edges are sewn together to draw the lip in and decrease its drooping fullness. By drawing the skin tightly at the corners of the mouth, any wrinkles will disappear.

The tiny stitches are removed within a day and all scars heal within two weeks.
